

WILMINGTON, N. C.

FRIDAY, MARCH 20, 1874.

GOVERNOR KEMPER'S VETO.

It is not to be expected that the example of Governor Kemper will be without injurious influence beyond the limits of his own State, for the reason that he has been looked upon as a representative man of that measure, restless feeling, from time to time, has been cropping out in different parts of the country, in efforts to create an organization separate from that which has since the war conducted the fight against the National Republican party. Governor Kemper as an exponent of the views and purposes of the new movement, is a legitimate subject for comment outside of Virginia.

The fall of Mr. Groesbeck of Ohio, from the high position he had so long held, so soon after his stayng after a long vacation, did not necessarily cut me out of the cause he had so recently joined and may be passed by without further comment. The same idea, however, as regards the example of Governor Kemper, is not to be overlooked for no other reason, because he has lately received the endorsement of the people of his grand old state of wealth in his recent election to a large majority to the position before him.

The same thing for Mr. Groesbeck to this point in the chart to form a new party in the State of Ohio, and failing to do so in that by the people, to be followed by an effort of the National Republican party. It is quite another thing.

Governor Kemper, who has been upon the head and front, no doubt, in his efforts, of that same new movement in Virginia, in the very first instance, to place himself, as the leader, with such ardor and enthusiasm, with the broad mass of the people, should just then withdraw.

We looked for instant belief and to a moment expected by Governor Kemper in recent events necessary to justify his action, but it was not to be found.

Mr. Kemper, who elected him, was not to be found with his friends, in the District of Columbia, to the date of his election, to the date of his signature.

THE CONSERVATIVE CONVENTION.

We are glad to notice that there is much inquiry in regard to the approaching Conventions of the Conservative party. It shows that the people already begin to feel an interest in the organization of the party for the approaching elections.

As there is no general State election, except for Superintendent of Public Instruction, we suppose there will hardly be any State Convention held. The State Executive Committee will meet at the first of May and nominate a candidate for that office, and perfect the organization of the party.

The following gentlemen were appointed members of the State Executive Committee, for the State at Large, and for the Congressional Districts, at the Convention held in Greensboro in May, 1872. There are vacancies caused by death and removals, which we have not yet been filled:
